Contingent Interest

*If the notes have not been automatically called and the closing price of one share of each Fund on any Review Date is greater than or equal to its Interest Barrier, you will receive on the applicable Interest Payment Date for each $1,000 principal amount note a Contingent Interest Payment equal to at least $26.625 (equivalent to a Contingent Interest Rate of at least 10.65% per annum, payable at a rate of at least 2.6625% quarterly) plus any previously unpaid Contingent Interest Payments for any prior Review Dates.

- As a finance subsidiary, JPMorgan Chase Financial Company LLC has no independent operations and has limited assets.
- The estimated value of the notes will be lower than the original issue price (price to public) of the notes.

- Potential conflicts: We and our affiliates play a variety of roles in connection with the issuance of notes, including acting as calculation agent and hedging our obligations under the notes, and making the assumptions used to determine the pricing of the notes and the estimated value of the notes when the terms of the notes are set. It is possible that such hedging or other trading activities of J.P. Morgan or its affiliates could result in substantial returns for J.P. Morgan and its affiliates while the value of the notes declines.
- The tax consequences of the notes may be uncertain. You should consult your tax adviser regarding the U.S. federal income tax consequences of an investment in the notes.
