Automatic Call

If on any Review Date (other than the first and final Review Dates) the closing value of the Underlying is greater than or equal to the Initial Value, the notes will be automatically called and you will receive a cash payment for each $1,000 principal amount note, equal to (a) $1,000 plus (b) the Contingent Interest Payment applicable to that Review Date, payable on the applicable Call Settlement Date. Selected Risks

Risks Relating to the Notes Generally

- Your investment in the notes may result in a loss. The notes do not guarantee any return of principal.
- The notes do not guarantee the payment of interest and may not pay interest at all.
- The level of the Index will include a 6.0% per annum daily deduction.
- Any payment on the notes is subject to the credit risks of JPMorgan Chase Financial Company LLC and JPMorgan Chase & Co. Therefore the value of the notes prior to maturity will be subject to changes in the market's view of the creditworthiness of JPMorgan Chase Financial Company LLC or JPMorgan Chase & Co.
- As a finance subsidiary, JPMorgan Chase Financial Company LLC has no independent operations and has limited assets.
- The appreciation potential of the notes is limited to the sum of any Contingent Interest Payments that may be paid over the term of the notes, regardless of any appreciation of the Underlying, which may be significant.
- The benefit provided by the Trigger Value may terminate on the final Review Date.
- If the notes have not been automatically called and the Final Value is below the Trigger Value, you will lose 1% of your principal for every 1% the Final Value is less than the Initial Value.
- The automatic call feature may force a potential early exit. There is no guarantee you will be able to reinvest the proceeds at a comparable interest rate for a similar level of risk.
- No dividend payments or voting rights.
- Lack of liquidity: J.P. Morgan Securities LLC (who we refer to as JPMS), intends to offer to purchase the notes in the secondary market but is not required to do so. The price, if any, at which JPMS will be willing to purchase notes from you in the secondary market, if at all, may result in a significant loss of your principal.
- The tax consequences of the notes may be uncertain. You should consult your tax adviser regarding the U.S. federal income tax consequences of an investment in the notes.

Risks Relating to Conflicts of Interest

- Potential conflicts: We and our affiliates play a variety of roles in connection with the issuance of notes, including acting as calculation agent and hedging our obligations under the notes, and making the assumptions used to determine the pricing of the notes and the estimated value of the notes when the terms of the notes are set. It is possible that such hedging or other trading activities of J.P. Morgan or its affiliates could result in substantial returns for J.P. Morgan and its affiliates while the value of the notes decline.
- Our affiliate, JPMS, worked with MerQube in developing the guidelines and policies governing the composition and calculation of the Underlying.

Risks Relating to the Estimated Value and Secondary Market Prices of the Notes

- The estimated value of the notes does not represent future values and may differ from others' estimates.
- The value of the notes, which may be reflected in customer account statements, may be higher than the then current estimated value of the notes for a limited time period.

Risks Relating to the Underlying

- The Underlying may not be successful or outperform any alternative strategy.
- The Underlying may not approximate its target volatility.
- The Underlying is subject to risks associated with the use of significant leverage.
- The Underlying may be significantly uninvested.
- The Underlying may be adversely affected if later futures contracts have higher prices than an expiring futures contract included in the Underlying.
